Dear Parents/Carers

Welcome to the seventeenth edition of the safeguarding newsletter from the Goldington Academy safeguarding team. Our aim is to bring you all the latest, relevant help and advice on issues that we feel will be of importance to you.

In this issue, the main focus is on 'knife crime' and 'county lines' drug dealing. We teach our pupils how to keep themselves safe through our Life Skills curriculum and we use external agencies, such as Bedfordshire Police, to give further guidance and information through assemblies.

Safeguarding children is everybody's responsibility. If you have concerns about the safety or welfare of any child, please do not hesitate to speak to a member of staff.

We hope that you will find the information in this newsletter useful. Please do not hesitate to contact us if you require any further information or support with any of the topics raised.

Yours sincerely

Mr W Atkinson

Assistant Headteacher

Designated Safeguarding Lead

Knife crime

With a steady rise in knife related crimes being reported over recent years, there is a concern that it is fast becoming an epidemic across the country, specifically impacting on young people, families and communities. Young people are sometimes exploited into crime and this may involve carrying or 'holding' a knife or weapon for someone else.

Potential signs that a young person may be being exploited:

- Being secretive about where they are, what they are doing and who they are seeing
- Not letting parents look in bags, coat pockets or bedrooms
- Being secretive around their phone and not allowing parents access to it
- Being in possession of expensive items that they did not have before e.g. clothes, jewellery etc
- Going missing for periods of time and being absent/truant from school
- Becoming isolated/distant from friends and family
- Having new marks or injuries and being secretive about how they were obtained

Approaching this type of conversation with children can often be difficult for parents. For information and advice please see:

County Lines

County lines is when gangs and organised crime groups exploit children to transport and sell drugs, normally between big cities where the exploiters are based to smaller towns, sometimes across county boundaries but also locally and within the borough. The children have dedicated mobile phone 'lines' for taking orders for drugs; children are used as they are less likely to be stopped by police, allowing adult dealers to avoid the risk of arrest.

County lines is a form of criminal exploitation, where a person or a group takes advantage of their contact with and influence over a young person to coerce or manipulate them to commit a criminal act. Children as young as six have been targeted by gangs for this purpose.

Young people may be recruited for county lines and other forms of criminal exploitation by a process of grooming: at the targeting stage, the exploiter befriends the young person and gains their trust. Young people may be recruited through social media and/or through their peer group. Parents of some of the victims of County Lines have reported a sudden change in their child's behaviour. Possible indicators are:

- Unexplained money, clothes or gifts
- Frequent, unexplained phone calls
- New friendship circle that involves older children or adults
- Not attending school
- Carrying weapons

This week's guide highlights simple steps that can prevent overheating, fires and other hazards linked to everyday electrical devices. It offers clear, reassuring advice to help adults spot risks early and model safer routines.

It explores common risk areas including unsafe charging habits and overloading sockets and explains how to identify early warning signs, such as damaged cables or poorly ventilated devices. The guide also touches on protective measures like RCDs and safe power bank use, supporting families and educators in creating safer environments for young people.
